

Anglo-Saxon Treasure

This is a sword pommel made of gold. It's the tip of a sword handle made by the Anglo-Saxons about 1000 years ago. It is very skilfully made with detailed gold patterns – proper treasure! It originally had jewels decorating it too, but they are lost now... Can you make this treasure bling again?

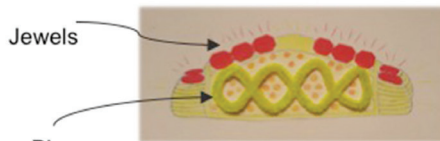

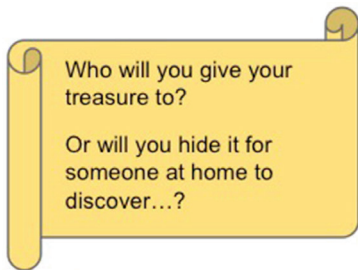

Lost jewels....

Ancient bling!

Make Your Own Treasure

Cut out the treasure and draw round it onto a piece of card. Shape one or two pipe cleaners into an over-and-under woven pattern. Glue firmly in place. Draw on the other details. Add the missing jewels - glue down pieces of coloured card cut into jewel shapes, or draw them on with coloured pencils or crayons.

Here's an example. You can use your own colours, designs and patterns.
